1. Descriptive Information

- A. Course: AEDR 420: Teaching Reading in the Elementary School
- B. Catalog Description: (3) This course will focus on the study of the various approaches to reading instruction and the place of reading in the curriculum.
Prerequisite: AEDR 418 and admission to Education Professional Program.
Corequisite: AEDR 420P Practicum in Reading.
- C. USCA School of Education Conceptual Framework
The objectives of this course are designed to facilitate the candidate's development as a Dynamic Educator. This course will focus specifically on the development of the Dynamic Educator as one who plans, instructs, manages, communicates and grows professionally.

II. Course Goals and Objectives

- A. Course Goals
To study the various phases of reading in relation to a modern program of education and the place of reading (literacy) in the curriculum. The many components of a balanced literacy program are addressed and studied as well as strategies for selecting appropriate materials, effective teacher behaviors, effective classroom management patterns, and techniques for meeting the individual needs and interests of students. The importance of continued professional growth through participation in professional organizations is encouraged.
- B. Instructional Objectives
Each Candidate will:
 - 1. Define the reading process and demonstrate knowledge of theoretical models of reading applied to reading instruction.
 - 2. Understand the concept of emergent literacy and the development of cognition and language in students and apply that knowledge in creating, evaluating, and selecting developmentally appropriate materials.
 - 3. Demonstrate knowledge of the advantages and disadvantages of approaches to reading instruction including basal reader (DRTA), language experience, literature-based reading, individualized reading, reading workshop, and guided reading.
 - 4. Discover ways of promoting vocabulary growth in students and will understand the flexible use of a variety of strategies for recognizing words in print.
 - 5. Study strategies readers can use to discover meaning from print and to monitor their own comprehension.
 - 6. Develop reading techniques using trade books across the curriculum.
 - 7. Become familiar with techniques for developing students' study skills and strategies for retrieving, analyzing, interpreting, organizing, evaluating, synthesizing, and communicating information and ideas.
 - 8. Be exposed to techniques that promote reading, writing and oral language for personal growth, lifelong learning, enjoyment and insight into the human experience.

9. Continue exploring the literature of childhood including (a) knowing a range of books, (b) knowing how to share literature with students and (c) knowing how to guide students to respond to books in a variety of ways.
10. Be able to promote creative thinking and expression, through literature circles, drama, choral/oral reading, reader response activities, etc.
11. Identify patterns of classroom organization and management plans for reading instruction.
12. Identify the effective teacher characteristics and behaviors described in current research.
13. Be aware of current research findings and their application in teaching students with exceptionalities and English language learners.
14. Recognize the importance of interaction with parents and community and its impact on literacy instruction.
15. Be aware of opportunities to grow professionally including professional literature, professional conferences, memberships in organizations, and other experiences to inform and improve practice.
