¹ If you have already taken ENGL A101 (as an AP course or dual enrollment), move onto ENGL A102.

² You should take whatever Math, Stats, or logic course you are comfortable taking, most history majors take PHIL A110, HSSI 200, and/or MATH A102. If you love math and want to take a more difficult course, go for it, but you don't need to.

³ Look at the list of 300 level history courses being offered and pick the one you're most interested in.

⁴ If you love foreign languages and want to keep going, you should take a class your first semester, students find [SPANISH FOR TEACHERS / SPANISH FOR SOCIAL WORKERS] to be particularly helpful if they are thinking about teaching or going to law school.

⁵ Not required, but completing an internship will give you a huge advantage as you apply to law school, graduate school, or for your first job and will help you clarify your career interests.
